34 BNP VICTORIES
AGAINST ALL THE ODDS

ON THURSDAY 4th May 2006 Britain's silent majority at last made their voice heard.

Voters in 356 wards across England resisted the unremitting pressure from the media, the establishment and an army of anti-BNP campaigners to cast their votes for the only political party that offers the British people a genuine choice.

The British National Party's 34 victories came in the face of a Government sponsored campaign that has driven a coach and horses through existing election law and makes a nonsense of the ideal of free and fair elections.

Just look at what our brave BNP candidates had to put up with.

- Every single national newspaper telling people not to vote BNP.
- Lies on every television channel about what the British National Party was saying in its election leaflets.
- Distribution of 420,000 anti-BNP newspapers funded by the Labour Party and Trade Union bosses.
- Attacks and intimidation on BNP elections workers by gangs of Labour Party thugs.

And if all this wasn't enough, even before the polls had closed there was news from Burnley and Bradford that BNP postal votes had been opened and intercepted by Labour supporters working in the Post Office.

And still the enemies of democracy hadn't finished. Even after the votes had been counted opponents of the British National Party tried to steal 1,000 BNP votes in Birmingham and in Barking, a winning BNP candidate's vote of 1,102 was announced as 102, and his seat given to a Labour candidate!

. . . and then there were 12!

AT FIRST there was just one, and then there were none. Then, in a matter of five hours between Thursday 4th May and Friday 5th May, there became no less then twelve BNP councillors on Barking and Dagenham Council.

It was a massive result for the British National Party and every member and supporter is indebted to Richard Barnbrook and his team of election workers who made it a night that has written its own chapter in the history of the BNP.

Even a bizarre incident where the returning officer announced Jeffrey Steed's winning 1,102 vote in Eastbury ward as just 102 votes and then proceeded to give the seat to Labour, couldn't take the shine off a memorable evening. The British National Party are now contesting this result in the High Court.

A NIGHT TO REMEMBER: Richard Barnbrook's smile tells the story of an unbelieveable night for the BNP at the count in Barking.

The silent majority - at last making their voice heard

Election debacle in Birmingham

After the count and two further recounts it was agreed that the BNP had won with 2,310 votes. Two hours later when everyone had left, election officers in Birmingham amended the result claiming the BNP vote was now just 1,329 votes

BIRMINGHAM'S first ever BNP councillor has been sworn in despite the city's electoral officials still insisting that two Labour councillors should be representing Kingstanding ward.

Sharon Ebanks was officially declared to have won the election in the ward after two recounts, but hours later electoral officials issued an amended set of results, slashing her vote from 2,310 to 1,329.

After the ceremony the new BNP councillor and Deputy BNP leader Simon Darby, contacted West Midlands Police asking them to investigate the "corrected" results.

Simon Darby said the discrepancies between the two declared results were beyond belief, especially as the original result was only declared after two recounts.

"There is something very wrong about this - they are telling us that there were three counts in front of dozens and dozens of people, not just us, and that no-one spotted any anomaly whatsoever.

"I would also like to know who gave the authority to amend the result after everyone had left the count at Stockland Green leisure centre."

Speaking exclusively to Freedom, Sharon recounted the events of an evening which seemed straight out of the pages of a political thriller.

"Right from the moment the ballot boxes were opened it was obvious we were looking at a big BNP vote.

"It had been a deliberate policy to field just one BNP candidate so as not to split our vote and this tactic had clearly paid off and both the Labour and Conservative candidates and counting agents looked visibly shaken as the BNP votes tumbled out across the tables.

"After the first count I had clearly won with over 2300 votes, a majority of more than 200 over my closest Labour rival.

"Despite this, first Labour and then the Tories demanded further recounts. Both of these confirmed the original result and to howls and hisses from the Labour contingent, I was declared the winner with a 224 majority.

"Sky News and the BBC filmed the declaration and I gave interviews to the Birmingham Evening Mail and Birmingham Post.

"The BNP delegation was the last to leave the building apart from council staff involved in the count. The police locked the gates and then left at the same time.

"We then drove to Birmingham Town Hall to view the other results across the city. All ward results were taped to the wall except for mine.

"Shortly afterwards I was confronted by BBC Radio WM's Adrian Goldberg who told me that there had been a mistake and I had only come third behind the two Labour candidates.

"I couldn't believe it. I had clearly won yet council officials were now trying to take that victory from me."

BRAVE AND DETERMINED: Kingstanding's new BNP councillor Sharon Ebanks, shows off her councillor's oath and vows not to be intimidated by the opposition.

RENTAMOB: An assortment of Labour Party thugs and trade union bosses turned up at Birmingham Town Hall to try to intimidate British National Party councillor Sharon Ebanks, as she arrived to be sworn in.

FREEDOM DEADLINES AND THE ELECTION

Because of Freedom's printing schedule, we have only been able to touch upon the stories behind the British National Party's stunning election success on May 4th. But don't worry, the newspaper will be 'dining out' on polling day memories in the coming months so please send us your reports and photographs of the election campaign that changed the face of British politics.

Back on track in Burnley

BURNLEY, the town which saw the BNP breakthrough into British politics back in 2002, has well and truly recovered from three years in the doldrums and registered some of its best election results.

Now back to seven councillors on Burnley council after winning in Hapton and Gannow wards, the only downside of election night was the return of our seat in Whittlefield to the Tories.

But elsewhere there were some excellent results. In Trinity, John Cave was just 18 votes behind the Labour victor, and in Gawthorpe, Scott Atkinson was just 27 votes short of overhauling the Labour candidate. In Rosegrove, Elaine Kirby beat the Labour leader on Burnley council but failed by 54 votes to take the seat from the Liberal Democrats.

There was also an encouraging result in Brunshaw despite us letting down voters with our candidate in 2003. BNP support still turned out in numbers and Anthony Locke polled 606 votes ,just 97 short of winning.

 Postal votes for the BNP were found opened at Burnley Post Office. Samples of these have now been handed to the police.

Our hidden victory in Bradford

BNP candidates less than 200 votes from winning in SEVEN wards

GAINED ONE seat, but lost two seats might seem somewhat of a set back for the British National Party in Bradford, but the underlying vote trends in the city paint a very different story.

LYNDA CROMIE: Just 143 votes short of victory in Royds ward.

In fact the election results represent a "hidden" victory for the BNP in Bradford with the Party, as well as winning Queensbury, coming second in eight of the other 15 wards contested and third in another four.

In the seats contested, the BNP share of the vote was 27.5%, just 2% behind the vote share of the ruling Conservative Party, and level with the Labour Party. The Liberal Democrats were adrift in 4th place with 20%.

Congratulations go to Paul Cromie with his victory in Queensbury gained with an impressive 296 majority, but there were some excellent other performances on the night which set up the BNP for a major push for Bradford Council next year.

Kim Raich was just 163 votes from winning in Clayton ward and Peter Wade just 63 votes from celebrating a famous victory in Eccleshill. Lynda Cromie failed to overhaul Labour in Royds by just 143 votes and Clifford Cockayne was a mere 189 adrift of the winning Tory candidate in Thornton and Allerton. Andrew Clarke was 176 votes from victory in Wibsey, Neil Craig just 193 short in Windhill & Wrose and Robert Manby 131 votes from beating Labour in Wyke.

WELL DONE PAUL!: Councillor Cromie (left) the BNP's new representative on Bradford Council with John Joy who polled 1161 votes in Worth Valley.

While our opponents and their friends in the media pat themselves on the back for seeing off the BNP challenge, our activists are already out on the doorsteps with 'thank you for voting BNP' leaflets and preparing for the next round of elections.

Polls now have an opinion on the BNP

ONE of the morale boosting spin-offs of the last election campaign is that the British National Party now appears in the opinion polls.

On 8th April a Populus poll from across the whole UK had the BNP on 3%, up from 1% in their last survey taken at the beginning of April, and there was even better news two days later when a YouGov poll had the BNP on 6%.

Anthony King, a professor of government at Essex University, who analysed the results reported: "The proportion of people saying they would vote for the British National Party at an early general election has edged up to six per cent. The oxygen of publicity has clearly gone some way towards inflating the BNP balloon."

Facing the storm alone

GOOD luck to those British National Party councillors who have to brave the council on their own because they are the BNP's sole representative.

Chris Beverley and Sharon Ebanks have probably the most 'daunting' task facing the formidable opposition on the huge city councils of Leeds and Birmingham.

But equally it will be just as nerve-wracking for the brave BNP election winners, Alan Bailey in Havering, Julian Leppert in Redbridge, Brian Parker in Pendle, David Enderby in Redditch and George Morgan in Solihull.

DAVID ENDERBY: Scored a famous victory for the BNP in Redditch.

Now it's EU asylum seekers jumping our housing queues

ASYLUM SEEKERS who have been granted sanctuary in another European Union country can move to Britain and claim free council housing.

That's according to a court ruling last month which forces councils to hand over the keys of a council house to jobless EU nationals with nowhere to live - even though they have never done a day's work in Britain.

A Somalian woman who travelled to Britain after being granted nationality by the Dutch Government brought the case which led to the ruling.

Judges said that because she did not have a job and was not looking for one, she was a special case.

As EU nationals, jobless migrants can freely come to live in Britain, but unless they find a job or have enough money to be self sufficient, they become subject to immigration controls.

It is these "economically inactive" migrants who have no money and do not bother to find work who are entitled to a free council house while the Home Office starts the protracted proceedings to seek an order to get them deported.

Now you see them . . . .

CAMPAIGN LAUNCH: The BNP's top table had Epping councillor Pat Richardson, Thurrock candidate Emma Colgate and Group Development Officer Sadie Graham, accompanying the BNP Chairman Nick Griffin. Yet in all but one of the launch reports in the next day's newspapers, the BNP ladies were nowhere to be seen.

. . . now you don't!

The BNP's incredible disappearing ladies

THERE was no better example of how a hostile media can manipulate the news so as the BNP isn't seen in the best light, than the launch of the Party's local election manifesto and campaign.

Journalists and photographers from a dozen newspapers and a BBC camera team descended on the venue in Thurrock, Essex where 40 of our Eastern and London region council candidates were present to be photographed and interviewed.

On the top table, BNP chairman Nick Griffin, was flanked by three of the Party's numerous lady officials, but when reports of the event appeared the next day they were nowhere to be seen.

In fact there was no mention of the 40 candidates either, but what the media did give coverage to was claims from an anti-BNP group being funded by the Labour Party and the TUC that the BNP was anti-Semitic.

This was particularly offensive to Epping Forest councillor Pat Richardson, who is herself Jewish and was sitting on the top table with Nick Griffin. But that doesn't matter to our opponents in the media. National Union of Journalists' guidelines on reporting on the BNP tell their members to doctor their reports to show the party in a bad light.

Meet a man doctoring your news

BILL HEARLD: Admitted to biased reporting when covering the BNP.

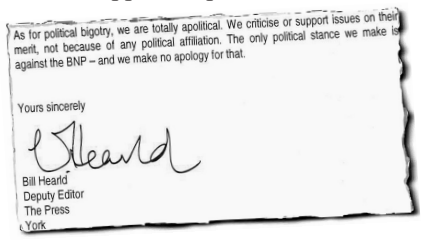

ONE of the main obstacles to true democracy in Britain today is a hardcore of individuals within the media who promote a specific political agenda yet hide it under a guise of political impartiality.

In other words the news you read in your newspaper, hear on your radio and see on the TV, is being doctored to push the public towards one political philosophy and against another.

One of these individuals slanting the news is Bill Hearld, deputy editor of the York Evening Press.

He claims that his paper is "totally apolitical" and would never be swayed by any political affiliation, yet in a private letter to a reader he reveals that his newspaper takes a stance against the BNP.

So the people of York are getting their news censored to stop them hearing about a lawful and legal political party by the likes of Bill Hearld because he doesn't support its policies.

As for political bigotry, we are totally apolitical. We criticise or support issues on their merit, not because of any political affiliation. The only political stance we make is against the BNP – and we make no apology for that.

Yours sincerely

Special course for ethnic officers

A TRAINING course to boost the number of senior police leaders from minority groups has been launched.

PALP - the Positive Action Leadership Programme is aimed at officers and staff who are black and minority ethnic (BME), gay, or those from specific faith groups who are under represented in senior ranks.

Project manager Gary Chapman, said: 'PALP is based purely on the needs of the individual, using training needs analysis, we can tailor this course to suit and is contexualised within the police service and the day to day demands placed upon an individual in the workplace."

The Home Office is footing the bill for the courses, providing further evidence that this Labour government has a deliberate policy of discriminating against white, heterosexual officers within the police force.

NO SURPRISE: Anthea Cox (insert) who was leader of the Labour group on Peterborough Council, used her position within the Methodist Church as a platform from which to attack the Christian Council of Britain.

Surprise, surprise BNP critic was a Labour councillor

THERE was surprise and dismay amongst many Methodist congregations when Anthea Cox delivered an hysterical attack on the Christian Council of Britain and the British National Party.

Cox is the Methodist Co-ordinating Secretary for Public Life and Social Justice, an impressive title for the local preacher on the Peterborough Methodist Circuit. She is also a former non-executive director of an NHS Trust and employee with the Workers' Educational Association.

She announced that she was outraged that the Christian Council of Britain and the BNP were promoting Christianity, and said she thought most Christians would be affronted by this.

"We are deeply concerned that some people are now appropriating Christian language and symbols for policies that are the very opposite of Christian values," she said.

The Methodist Church has always made it very clear that it opposes any form of discrimination or victimisation of people because of their beliefs, so it's quite surprising that Anthea Cox, with her significant political baggage of which many Methodists will be unaware, should launch such an attack on people promoting Christianity.

She was a Labour Party councillor and leader of the opposition group on Peterborough City Council and a Labour candidate in Cambridge at the 2001 General Election.

Her Party is still discriminating against native British people in employment, housing and social services as well as launching a witch-hunt against BNP members just because of their political beliefs.

Sports complex developer slams Labour & Lib-Dems

by Nick Cass

KIRKLEES BNP Councillor, David Exley, had been hoping to create a multi-million pound sports centre in his Heckmondwike ward and had been working towards that end with a local company to get the project off the ground.

Ballpark Leisure Ltd wanted to create a sports complex on recreation ground off Dale Lane, Heckmondwike, which is owned by the Council.

The complex would have provided a much-needed leisure facility for the people of Heckmondwike, as well as helping to keep youngsters fit, occupied and out of trouble. It would also have provided local jobs.

David Exley told Freedom:

"The plans included floodlit five-a-side pitches and a multi-purpose sports hall.

"One of the five outdoor pitches would have been exclusively for community use at no charge, while people living within a half-mile radius of the centre would receive discounts on single activities, such as aerobics classes and circuit training."

But the Liberal Democrats on Kirklees Council changed the goalposts over land fees and Ballpark Leisure was forced to withdraw its offer and take their project elsewhere.

An insider on the council said that the project was blocked because it was BNP Councillor David Exley, who was behind its development.

"They figured that a new facility for local people, launched and promoted by a British National Party councillor would show that the Party was making things happen for local residents and would encourage the election of more BNP councillors," she said.

The Labour Party tried to make political gain by putting out its Labour Rose newsletter attacking the Lib-Dems for not supporting the project and claiming 'the sports centre proposals were fully supported by your Labour Team'.

Then in the Bradford Telegraph and Argus Labour councillor David Sheard, claimed:

"I was behind the plans as we have had problems with that bit of land in the past, such as flytipping. It is a pity something which would have been such an advantage to the town has fallen through."

In reality the Labour Party had nothing whatsoever to do with the sports centre development. This deliberate misrepresentation of the facts was the final straw for the managing director of Ballpark Leisure, Zoltan Biricz, who wrote to the local newspaper, The Press, on March 31st setting the record straight in no uncertain terms.

"I contacted all three councillors in Heckmondwike, Labour's David Sheard, Tabusam Aslam of the Liberal Democrats and the British National Party councillor, David Exley.

"Despite numerous phone calls, emails and letters, neither David Sheard or Tabusam Aslam could even be bothered to reply.

"Only David Exley was regularly in contact and he did everything in his power to support this development.

"It became apparent to me that neither the Liberal Democrats or Labour were remotely interested in getting this project off the ground," Mr Biricz told the newspaper.

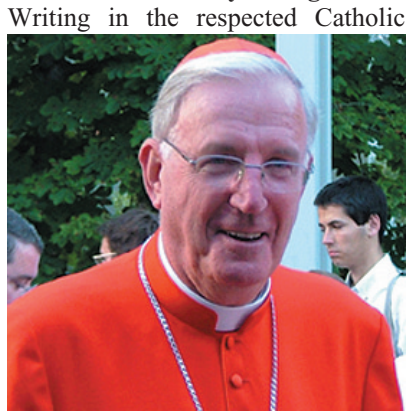

"Only David Exley was regularly in contact and he did everything in his power to support this development."

Catholics tell Cardinal of concerns over immigration

THE LEADER of the Catholic Church in England has warned that many older members of his congregation have told him they feel overwhelmed by immigration.

Writing in the respected Catholic journal, The Tablet, Cardinal Cormac Murphy-O'Connor said:

■ Cardinal Murphy-O'Connor

"We cannot be naive about the social tensions that the massive immigration of the past years has produced.

"In the East End of London in particular, there is a sense of being overwhelmed; and for the elderly working class Catholics, who find they are the only ones in the doctor's surgery who speak English as a native language, there is a sense of the cultural ground being pulled out from under them."

The Cardinal said that the current wave of immigration into Britain was the biggest movement of people in history, and that priests needed to be aware of the feelings of those Britons left in the path of this influx.

Political panto boosts BNP in Epping

Union boss confronts BNP canvassers while Conservative MP says 'Vote Labour'

TALK ABOUT a political pantomime, voters in Epping must have been rolling in the isles as they witnessed the most bizarre slapstick antics from Labour and the Tories in an effort to stop voters supporting the BNP.

EPPING Forest MP Eleanor Laing, spelt out to voters the basic tenets of the democratic system:

"You cannot actually vote against a political party, you can only vote for one. And if you vote for a party, you're saying that you support what they stand for."

There was nothing wrong with that analysis but then Laing, who is a Conservative, contradicted herself by announcing.

"I say to the voters of Epping Forest, vote Labour if you want to, but please don't vote for the BNP."

Rail union boss Bob Crow, was delighted to receive such backing from the Tories and hotfooted it to Epping to confront British National Party candidate Rodney Law, who is a member of his trade union.

BEDFELLOWS?: Union boss Bob Crow, and Epping MP Eleanor Laing.

The London Evening Standard was on hand to report the encounter between the two men on the streets of Loughton, giving it a full page of coverage.

"Ere, I want to talk to you," Crow shouted as he waddled across the road to meet Rodney Law who was busy canvassing.

"You've got no support and you don't speak for anyone but yourselves," continued the RMT leader.

The British National Party candidate and his campaigners were as stunned as some of Loughton's shoppers, by this Evening Standard 'sting' but as the stage-managed encounter unfolded, Rodney told Crow that his telephone hadn't stopped ringing with messages from well-wishers.

And that level of support for the BNP was backed up by the two journalists on hand. They canvassed nearby Mornington Road and Paley Gardens and found that ALL apart from three people questioned said they were voting for the British National Party!

UKIP boss cashes in Labour policy

THE leader of the UK Independence Party Roger Knapman, has cashed in on Labour's open door immigration policy and imported cheap east European labourers to renovate his West Country mansion.

And if that wasn't bad enough, the Polish workers were hired by his son's company, Billdar, which specialises in bringing foreign labour to Britain!

The disclosure will disappoint a great many of UKIP's patriotic members, coming on the back of a disastrous showing in the local elections and newspaper revelations about their drunken MEPs spending more time in Brussels' brothels than in the European Parliament.

BETRAYAL: Using cheap foreign labour puts Britons on the dole.

Burnley bleeds from New Labour cuts

INVOLVED in an accident? Then Burnley is not the place to be! That was the hard-hitting election message put out by the British National Party in the Lancashire town.

The BNP leaflet attacked the Labour Council for allowing the Accident and Emergency Department at Burnley Hospital to close, leaving patients to travel to Blackburn to get treatment.

"Labour is squeezing the life out of our town," says the leaflet, "In 2002 they started to shut down our care homes and now they are running down our hospital."

And it wasn't only the closure of the A&E that Labour were under fire for. Burnley BNP also attacked:

- The decision to demolish perfectly good school buildings just so that a new school can be built to 'integrate' greater numbers of Asian pupils.
- The introduction of quotas for council employees to put more ethnic minorities in posts.
- Conversion of Burnley House in Westgate into a one-stop drugs shop to provide free fixes for addicts.

May 3rd 2007: The campaign starts now!

The British National Party made further progress along the road to gaining more political influence within our country with a very good set of local election results on May 4th. It is vital that we build on these gains, so the campaign for next year's round of local elections must start now. Funds are desperately needed to help finance this 'push for power' - please help all you can.

British National Party

WHERE WE STAND

CRIME: A crack-down on crime with more 'Bobbies on the Beat'. Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty for child killers and terrorists. Zero tolerance for drug-dealers and violent thugs.

IMMIGRATION: An end to immigration and the scandal of bogus asylum seekers flooding Britain. Use the billions now wasted in foreign aid to fund generous 'Homeward Bound' schemes to encourage immigrants to return to their land of ethnic origin.

INDUSTRY: British ownership and control of British industry and resources, including the mass media. Protection of British jobs and industry by selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.

HEALTH: We will use the vast sums of money now wasted on funding our membership of the EU for the restoration of an effective national health service and proactive measures to produce a healthier population in the first place.

EUROPEAN UNION: British withdrawal from the European Union. We will trade with Europe where it benefits Britain, but want no political ties or monetary union.

EDUCATION: A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and an end to 'trendy' teaching methods which have failed our children so badly.

ENVIRONMENT: A healthy environment for a healthy people - the protection of our countryside; a ban on greenfield-site house building except in exceptional cases of genuine local need and an end to field trials of genetically modified crops.

FARMING & FISHING: The regeneration of British farming, with the objective of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food. The restoration of the fishing industry through protection of our traditional fishing grounds.

GOVERNMENT & COMMUNITY: The establishment of a government that puts British interests first. A return to healthy moral values and policies aimed at strengthening the family and community. Tough penalties for corruption in public life.

FREEDOM: A massive expansion of freedom and democracy to roll back the erosion of our traditional freedoms and truly reflect the wishes of the people. The adoption of popular referenda and high technology direct democracy.

DEFENCE: An alternative defence strategy based on the principle of armed neutrality. No British blood should be shed in conflicts which do not involve British interests. The restoration of the County Regiment system and the reversal of defence cuts which have weakened our Armed Forces and cost thousands of jobs.

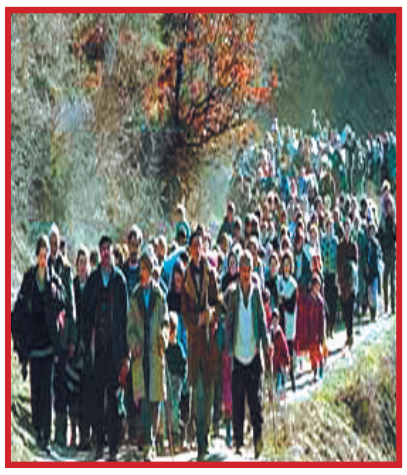

REMEMBER! It doesn't matter if you don't agree with us on every last thing. Like all other democratic political parties, the BNP includes some members who disagree with one or two policies. Just ask yourself whether you agree with more of our policies than those of the other parties. Most people

50,000 more waiting to come to Britain from Eastern Europe

A REPORT from the Institute for Public Policy Research (IPPR) has warned that further expansion of the EU next year will add to the current flood levels of illegal immigration.

IPPR associate director Danny Sriskandarajah, explained:

"More than 50,000 Romanian and Bulgarian immigrants will move to Britain next year if their countries join the European Union on January 1, 2007. This estimate is based on what happened after May 2004, when thousands of East European immigrants, far more than expected, took advantage of EU accession to move to Britain to find work.".

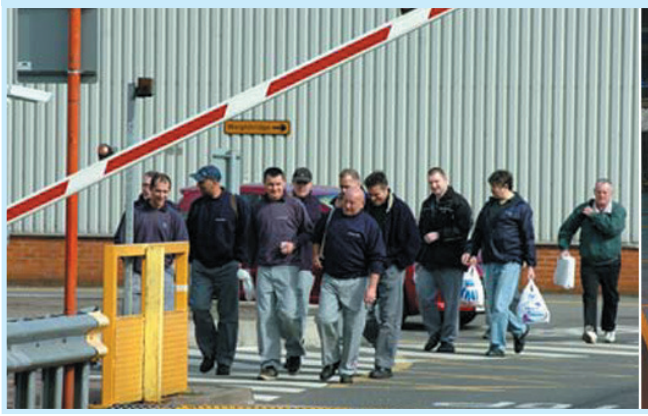

ON THEIR WAY: Romanian gypsies coming to 'enrich' our way of life.

Thankfully, there are a growing number of Britons who are waking up to the fact that this country is full up, and its infrastructure is already at breaking point.

Labour, the Tories and the Lib-Dems in their Westminster village might try to claim that the country will be enriched by ever greater numbers of immigrants, but the reality is very different.

It's only the British National Party that tells the truth and we say, "there's simply no more room."

Motor Town - Betrayed by a Government which refuses to defend British jobs from the ravages of the Global Market

Taxpayers fund Brussels bribes that steal our jobs

by Steve Johnson

THE LAST MAJOR car plant in the city that was once Britain's 'Motor Town', Coventry, is being shut down. Thousands of local jobs, those of workers employed in the factory itself and those whose jobs, from making motor parts to running local shops selling goods to the carmakers' families, are being exported to Slovakia.

It's another betrayal of British manufacturing by this Labour Government which refuses to defend British jobs from the ravages of the Global Market.

The Peugeot plant at Ryton is one of the most productive in Europe, producing 67 cars per worker per year, just 2 short of the best-performing Peugeot plant in Spain and well ahead of the just 54 cars a year French workers at Poissy make.

But in Slovakia, a workforce can be hired for a fifth the wages Western Europeans need to live on, and that's why French bosses are moving the production of the French car there.

And because Peugeot is a French company, it is prepared to support French workers at its under-performing Poissy plant in France and give them the new Peugeot 207 to build.

"... because it's a French company it has no loyalty, commitment or fear of a backlash in sacking its more efficient and dedicated British workers, discarding them to a life on the dole."

And because it's a French company it has no loyalty, commitment or fear of a backlash in sacking its more efficient and dedicated British workers, discarding them to a life on the dole.

Slovakia gets 3,500 new jobs and a giant new plant at Trnava, which will eventually produce 450,000 cars a year. Peugeot has moved there because not only is there an unlimited supply of cheap labour, but the Slovak Government has built a motorway to the factory and is offering Peugeot multi-million pound tax breaks.

This once poor country can afford these vast sums because they get huge handouts from European Union funds - £78 million last year alone. It's funds to which Britain, unlike Eastern European countries, is a net contributor, providing an endgame whereby the British taxpayer is being used by Brussels to bankroll bribes to take British jobs out of Britain!

Unemployed car workers in Coventry will get short shrift from New Labour. The reaction of Blair and Brown was to shrug the lost jobs and ruined lives off as an inevitable consequence of the global market economy which they wholeheartedly support.

Thirty years ago, 55% of jobs in Coventry were in manufacturing - now it's down to 18% and falling. It's the same picture across the country, but on the very day Peugeot announced they were shutting down Ryton, Tony Blair had the affront to tell the House of Commons. "Britain's economy is performing well".

It might be performing well for him and his millionaire lawyer wife, Cherie, who can afford a £4 million mortgage, but for young working couples in Coventry, the future looks bleak as their dreams of ever affording a home of their own are dashed.

Globalisation makes the super-rich cosmopolitan capitalist clique who fund and run New Labour today even richer.

But the price of higher living standards for the global mega-rich is paid by ordinary British people like those in Coventry, who see their jobs shipped abroad in order to fund this lavish lifestyle.

Labour has done far more than sell-out to its big business paymasters for a few peerages. It has sold its soul, and the hopes and dreams of the ordinary folk who founded the Labour Party a century ago.

"Thirty years ago, 55% of jobs in Coventry were in manufacturing - now it's down to 18% and still falling."

It's Peugeot today, Vauxhall tomorrow

CAR WORKERS at Vauxhall's Ellesmere Port plant on Merseyside fear that their jobs could be going the same way as their colleagues at Ryton.

Ellesmere Port employs 3,250 workers and last year made 188,000 cars, but the plant's owners, General Motors, are about to decide where the next generation Vauxhall Astra is to be built. GM has five factories that could build it - Ellesmere Port plus four abroad - and has stated it only needs four.

Carl-Peter Foster, chairman of GM Europe has already warned the workforce that he regards Ellesmere Port as "vulnerable".

The Merseyside car workers jobs are vulnerable because their factory is owned by a global multi-national corporation which is able to switch production to anywhere in the world at the drop of an accountant's pencil. This leaves its British employees dumped on the dole as sacrifices to this global free trade philosophy that is supported by both Labour and the Tories.

Car parts jobs go to China

IT'S NOT just our jobs making cars that are threatened by global capitalism, it's also our jobs making the parts for these cars.

Global car parts giant Visteon, which employs around 3000 workers in plants in Basildon, Enfield, Belfast and Swansea, has just announced it plans to shut down half its plants, lay off workers and cut the pensions of those who hang on to their jobs.

In a letter to all staff sent out at the end of April, Visteon UK boss Steve Gawne, announced that Belfast and Swansea are likely to be shut down and the pensions of workers at the surviving plants face "potential changes" (not thought to be a raise!)

The car part multinational boss said pay rates were "not competitive" compared with rates at car parts plants in the Far East, making it cheaper, because Britain has no import controls or levies, for cheap Chinese parts to be shipped in for the dwindling few cars that are still built in Britain.

The black hole of the EU rip-off

THE French city of Strasbourg has been overcharging the European Parliament up to €2.7 million a year in rent for at least the last 25 years.

The current internal probe on European Parliament bookkeepers, will no doubt re-ignite the debate on keeping the parliament seat in Strasbourg, but French diplomats are trying to play down the significance of the dispute.

"This is a matter that should not be inflated artificially. It is a discussion between MEPs and the city of Strasbourg," a French official stated.

It is a scandal that, yet again, the lack of any form of proper accounting procedures within the monolithic EU bureaucracy means money - our money - is handed over to the European Union never to be seen again.

CRAWLEY: British National Party candidate for Ifield, George Baldwin, receives a presentation from Nick Griffin in recognition of his work promoting the party in the Sussex town.

MAKING OUR MARK IN GREENWICH:
Roberta Woods polled 976 votes in Eltham West in the face of a Labour dirty tricks campaign that included a scaremongering leaflet to the Ferrier Estate accusing the BNP candidate of being an outsider despite the fact that Roberta has lived there for the last 14 YEARS!
Labour MP for Eltham Clive Efford, also issued a leaflet to residents warning them that voting for the BNP would make Eltham the racist capital of Britain!

Prepare now for 3rd May 2007

I HAVE been involved in nationalist politics for 30 years - and hand on my heart I can tell you that things have never been so good. In fact, I have to keep pinching myself to make sure that the last month hasn't just been a dream and that the British National Party does now actually hold 53 council seats across the country.

When Dagenham MP Jon Cruddas, first raised the possibility of a BNP breakthrough in an interview in The Spectator, it started the ball rolling and when Margaret Hodge and the Rowntree Trust backed up his claims all within 24 hours, there was the distinct feeling that the genie was out of the bottle.

But more was to come with Sky News publishing a YouGov poll which showed that more than half of British people backed BNP policies, and then a Sunday Mirror survey put the BNP vote in Barking on 45%.

Of course we benefited from this publicity, but the seeds of our success were sewn back in 2004 when as well as contesting the European Election, we were able to field 304 local candidates. That massive effort on behalf of our small but growing party helped sink the local roots that helped us win in many of the 33 seats we gained on May 4th.

The real story of these local elections, however, is not about the actual seats we won, but about those wards in which we have grown to become the main challenger and it will be these contests next year on which the future of the British National Party rests.

For a political party to keep progressing, it needs to keep growing, attracting a regular intake of new recruits who enthuse and re-invigorate the older hands who have seen and done it all before. The best recruitment sergeant for any political party is victory at the polls and working towards that end is something all our members and supporters must be involved in from now on.

The campaign against the BNP this time around was unprecedented. It must have been a £multi-million industry involving full-time workers, banks of telephone operators, tons of anti-BNP literature, never-ending television and newspaper attacks on the Party, organisations sponsored to speak out against us and even a countrywide music tour to call on people not to vote for the BNP. Next time the forces against us will be even more intimidating and that is why we need to start our campaign for next May NOW.

One of the main gripes that many voters in local elections have is that they only see their politicians when polling day is looming. We have to show that the BNP is different. We need to be continually out selling Freedom on the doorstep and putting out local leaflets to make our presence felt. Sinking roots in the local community now, will mean that when the Labour Party and the trade unions bosses start putting out their smear leaflets next year, the voters will already personally know their local BNP representatives and despatch the Labour lies to the dustbin where they belong.

Further success for the British National Party will only come by winning in the community through the efforts of our local activists and this is where we do have an advantage. Our Party might be small, but it has momentum, whereas the three main parties are in decline. The latest election results have provided us with a massive morale boost and one that hopefully will sustain us over the next 12 months as we work to ensure our progress continues.

Just another ploy

I LISTENED in disbelief to the early morning Church Service on BBC Radio 4 to commemorate St George's Day.

The service actually came from Scotland inappropriate in itself, but then the minister went on to say that he was not only there to celebrate St George but to celebrate all the four patron saints and to explore the distinctive but overlapping spiritual identities which make up Britishness.

It seems that the English aren't even allowed this one occasion to celebrate their special day. He suggested that it would be a good idea to have a British saint with a day to celebrate Britishness.

This would be handy for the establishment's idea of Britishness. That is anyone who has managed to smuggle themselves into this country and then disappear until an amnesty is declared when they can apply to be British.

It's another ploy from the Government to do away with the English character.

Sally Wood, email.

Billy puts family first

IT'S QUITE flattering that Billy Bragg, should consider the British National Party so significant that he talked about very little else in the run-up to the local elections.

It was highly amusing to hear him demonising the BNP on Radio 2 whilst at the same time trying to defend his style of socialism which has moved him out of the multicultural London suburbs to a very affluent, white and traditionally English town on the Devon coast.

Bragg's mitigating circumstances were that he "had his family to consider."

Well I never! Billy has hit the nail on the head. That's why thousands of voters in his old stamping ground of Barking and Dagenham voted for the BNP on May 4th . . . they also had their families to consider!

The difference with them was that they had to stay and campaign to keep Barking and Dagenham 'traditional'. Unlike Billy Bragg, they couldn't afford to scuttle away, miles behind the multicultural frontline, to a retreat in Devon.

Rory Allanson, London

Perception management

THE BIGGEST perception management attempt by this Labour Government at present is to argue we have a housing shortage because more people want to live alone and that we are living longer.

It is as if they believe the public is oblivious to what is going on around them, completely neglecting to mention that millions of houses are also needed for increasing numbers of immigrants which perpetuates the problem.

Mr A. Rowlands, Chiswick

Close our borders

I AM a 16 year old student studying for my AS exams and my interest in politics and the way in which our country is being run is growing.

The BNP is the only glimmer of hope left for the British people, as our Government seem to be doing their level best to undermine our heritage.

From the politically correct indoctrination of children, such as a school singing Bah Bah Green Sheep to the channelling of immigrants into the towns and cities, our culture is under attack.

Something has to be done to stop so many people coming to Britain and soon. At the moment we could close our borders and the authorities would be able to deal with any protests from our immigrant communities. In another ten years at the current levels of immigration, and that might not be the case.

Jack Offiler, Grimsby.

The BNP is right

A BANGLADESHI woman who shook her five-month-old baby so violently that he suffered brain damage, was allowed to walk free because a judge said she had a different culture and customs to those in Britain.

Apparently the woman shook the baby over several weeks, causing one side of his brain to shrink, in an effort to rid him of evil spirits, but Judge Rodney McKinnon told her:

"You are a young lady who came from a rural community with customs and ways, so that getting to know the ways of living in the West and in this country were not easy."

If that's the case, what on earth is she doing here?

The introduction of people so culturally alien into this country is bad enough, but changing our laws because they can't assimilate into our society is quite another thing.

The BNP is right. It's time to stop all immigration NOW!

Carol Ditchburn (ex-Tory), Sutton.

UNISON leadership

WHY do the members of UNISON put up with their leadership financing the Labour Party?

Last year the union donated £490,613 to the very Government that is seeking to scrap the safeguards which enables some UNISON members to be able to take retirement on full pension at 60.

David Abrahams, Manchester.

Changing Glasgow

AS a Gaelic speaking Scot, I was surprised to be reprimanded by social workers for speaking Gaelic to my children.

I was born in Glasgow, as were my parents, but due to the influx of other people over the years, the city has changed beyond recognition.

I had hoped to leave for a more traditional environment before my children went to secondary school, but due to caring for my father, who refuses to leave the city he defended both during the War and in 30 years in the Glasgow Fire Service, I have to stay.

I live in Pollokshields which is a majority Asian area and close to Pollokshaws which is where all the asylum seekers have been housed. Glasgow is in a sorry state these days - it was never as bad as this even in the "bad old days".

I would appreciate any advice you can give me with regard to the social workers and their refusal to accept the terms of the Gaelic Language (Scotland) Act 2005.

Elisabeth Palmer, Pollokshields.

Victims of cheap labour

VANESSA Feltz's LBC morning radio phone-in had Sir Andrew Green speaking on unsustainable immigration in the light of news that Britain stands alone amongst EU member states in facing another flood of Eastern European immigrants.

Sir Andrew even confirmed the BNP's election leaflet figure, disputed by Sky News, of 1.5 million homes needed for immigrants alone over the next 20 years. There were also some upsetting calls from disillusioned craftsmen and tradesman who were suffering wage depression because of the cheap labour influx and who were finding it hard to pay the mortgage on their family homes.

This smug, big-business-orientated, self serving Government has made it very clear that it doesn't care about the British worker and that is why the Labour vote at the local elections collapsed.

Mrs P. Douglas, Edmonton.

Wear your badge

SOON after joining the BNP, I bought a Union Jack lapel badge, which I wear all the time.

I live in a town second only to Slough in the South East for its concentration of ethnic minorities, and am often asked about the badge which gives me the opportunity to promote the BNP, face to face, to acquaintances as well as to total strangers. I have not yet been vilified!

This is a small thing in itself, but if a drive were launched to encourage each and every member of the BNP to wear a lapel badge on every occasion, it would contribute in no small way to our visible presence and our goal of reclaiming Britain for the native British.

Robert Dewar, High Wycombe

Exclusive to British National Party members

Too many tiers of government!

DO YOU remember the good old days when government in Britain meant the Town Hall, County Hall or Westminster?
Well today, most of you, whether you realise it or not, now contribute to at least 7 tiers of government:

- Town Council
- District Council
- County Council
- Regional Assemblies
- House of Commons
- House of Lords
- European Parliament . . .

and each and every layer is complete with its own bureaucratic machine.
On top of all this, there's the whole rotten EU infrastructure - draining £1.2 million out of our pockets each and every hour.
Think of all the money it costs to pay for this vast army of unproductive drones, and how the money could be better spent, in Britain, on Britons.
Our poorer pensioners would be able to live in dignity, instead of in poverty. Health Care could be truly improved and just imagine how many extra teachers, road sweepers, etc, etc, could be hired if this unproductive, bureaucratic burden was reduced?
When it comes to government, less is definitely better.

Cost of asylum seekers takes council jobs toll

SOME 250 jobs are to be axed by a west London council because it has overspent on providing for bogus asylum seekers.
Hillingdon borough, home to Heathrow airport, has exceeded its budget by £5.3 million in caring for 900 unaccompanied youngsters sent to Britain by their parents to cash in on our benefits system.
Now the shortfall has to be made up so Hillingdon council is cutting jobs in its education, social services and housing departments.

Labour casts for ethnic anglers

THE ENVIRONMENT Agency has launched a campaign funded by some of the £19 million it collects by selling fishing licences, to attract members of the ethnic minorities to the sport.
Promoting the campaign, a 10-point leaflet rather piously announces:
"Angling most certainly does not discriminate against gender, race, age or athletic ability."
Apparently the Government sees Britain's most popular participation sport as much too white, and in need of a bit of compulsory integration.

'Proud to be British' man gets 6 months

A MAN who told Muslim worshippers outside a Cumbrian mosque to "go back to where you came from" was sentenced to six months in prison for racially aggravated harassment.
Bryan Cork had also shouted: "I'm proud to be British" outside Carlisle's Brook Street mosque, but Judge Paul Batty, QC, told Cork that expressing such sentiments in any form would not be tolerated.

Big Business is watching you

Courtesy of the European Union

A NEW report by civil liberties groups, 'Statewatch' and the 'Transnational Institute' called Arming Big Brother, attacks the European Union for sponsoring research into surveillance and control technologies.
Expressing grave concerns that the EU is already working on the development of an internal security-industrial complex at a staggering cost of almost £700 million per year, the report goes on to explain that the European Security Research Programme (ESRP) is governed by a 50-member advisory board composed of at least 14 defence companies.
And this is without oversight from MEPs or for that matter any other elected representatives.
Indeed, the author of the report, Ben Hayes, points out that the whole dubious initiative is "completely unaccountable and gives multinational corporations an unacceptable role in EU decision-making."
The report also highlights that fact that a major part of the vast budget available is earmarked for high-tech surveillance systems.

B&Q recruits Polish builders

THE profits of B&Q collapsed last year forcing the DIY retailer owners, Kingfisher, to cut jobs and close stores.
Now the company is seeking to make further savings by recruiting thousands of Polish builders and decorators for its 'do-it-for-me' services. This is for customers who want their purchases installed by B&Q and the home improvement chain had been using a 2000 strong team of sub-contractors.

Kingfisher's chief executive, Gerry Murphy, didn't pull his punches admitting that B&Q was looking at hiring workers from Poland because labour there was much cheaper than in Britain.

Crawley gets its branch status

THERE was standing room only at a British National Party meeting in Crawley on 7th April when Nick Griffin, the Party chairman, was present to grant 'branch status' to the Crawley & Horsham BNP group.

Over 120 people crammed into the venue to hear the BNP chairman speak at length on the threat facing this country from the corporate fascism of New Labour and how our long-established freedoms and democracy were being daily eroded by a Government that wants to clamp down on all dissent.

He highlighted the threat facing the ordinary British people, including the privatisation of public services such as the NHS and council housing.

The speech was very warmly received by all those present and he was given a rousing standing ovation when he finished. A collection was held and £800 was donated by those present.

Richard Trower, Crawley & Horsham BNP Branch Organiser, said:

"I am absolutely delighted by the support we have received and by the fact that Nick sees this area as so important to the future growth of the BNP, that he came all the way down here to address us.

"We are here to stay and it is my intention to build on our fantastic growth in Crawley & Horsham to the point that we will have BNP councillors in both towns."

Labour thugs don't deter brave Bill

by Bob Gertner

SEVENTY-EIGHT year old Bill Wren, one of three BNP candidates for Mile End & Globe Town ward in the London borough of Tower Hamlets, was door-stepped and verbally abused by two Labour party thugs just before polling day.

Bill had answered a knock on his flat door in Shadwell, and was confronted by two men who shouted anti-BNP abuse at him before kicking over his recycling bin and scattering its contents across the communal passage.

Naturally worried, he telephoned the police but nobody turned up and he had to wait 16 hours before two officers arrived to take a brief statement.

Bill was born and has lived all his life in this part of London - he is a true East Ender. There have been many changes in his neighbourhood over the last 35 years with the area now predominately populated by Pakistani Muslims.

The brave BNP candidate said he was not deterred by the incident and he received a tremendous round of applause when BNP chairman Nick Griffin, introduced him to the audience at the London election meeting.

BRAVE: Bill Wren with the BNP chairman Nick Griffin.

WELLING & ELTHAM: Local election candidates James Sneadon and Roberta Woods were guest speakers at the Bexley & Greenwich meeting.

'Changing Bexley' needs the BNP

BEXLEY & Greenwich BNP held a successful meeting on Tuesday 4th April and raised over £300 for their local election campaign.

The meeting introduced Roberta Woods, the BNP candidate in Eltham West ward for Greenwich Council, who made her maiden speech detailing the reasons behind her decision to firstly join the BNP and then stand as a candidate.

Roberta was joined on the top table by James Sneadon the BNP candidate in Falconwood and Welling ward for Bexley Council, and by Bexley fund holder and candidate for East Wickham, Shelia Clark, who spoke on how the demographic changes in Bexley had accelerated since 1997 and also how council tax had doubled since Labour came to power.

Bexley & Greenwich Branch hold their meetings on the first Tuesday of every month. For futher details please call 07876 788 539.

Standing room only in Leicester

by John Ryde

OFFICIALS of Leicestershire & Rutland British National Party apologised to those members and guests who were not able to find seating at a record breaking branch meeting held on April 8th.

Grand National Day saw 130 people packed into a pleasant rural venue to hear guest speaker, Nick Griffin.

The BNP chairman is always impressive, but his informative, humorous and thought-provoking speech was as much an inspiration to long standing nationalists as it was an eye-opener to newcomers.

In his branch organiser's report Geoff Dickens, spoke of new members and enquiries now being updated weekly (again record breaking figures) and reported that since the last meeting, local members had distributed in excess of 15,000 leaflets locally.

Including the collection, raffle and merchandise sales the amount of money raised on the day was just a few pounds short of £1,000.

An example of the growing strength of the British National Party in the Midlands was that the Coventry Branch held a similarly packed meeting just 12 miles away at the same time.

£500 raised at Coventry election meeting

COVENTRY & Warwickshire Branch held a very successful meeting on Saturday 8th April to kick off their biggest Council Election campaign to date.

Branch organiser Chris Turner, informed the 50 strong audience of the need for everyone present to help with the campaigns of Coventry's seven BNP candidates as part of laying the groundwork for next year.

Rob Purcell from Birmingham recounted how his branch had grown from putting up a handful of candidates in 2003 to contesting all 40 wards in 2006. He encouraged the Coventry and Warwickshire Branch to follow their example.

There was a 45 minute interval where everyone present tucked into an excellent buffet, and contributed to a near £500 collection.

It was then time for the main speaker, and back by popular demand was Lee Barnes, who gave a blistering analysis of the many failures of the main parties with particular reference to the massive wave of immigrants that are now coming to Britain, who should be in their own countries trying to help build up their own infrastructure.

Lee kept the audience riveted as he explained that only the BNP had the courage to tackle the looming problems of an increasingly splintered society and all the ills that befall it.

Chris Turner then closed the meeting with the news that a local shopkeeper was giving 10% off all goods to anyone who showed their British National Party membership card.

Giving Shrewsbury a helping hand

BRITISH National Party members from Wales 'crossed the border' to help the Party's local election campaign in Shrewsbury!

Over 30 Welsh activists, including John Walker, the BNP's National Treasurer, spent the weekend in the Shropshire town, canvassing, leafleting and selling Freedom.

"We received a friendly response from the people of Shrewsbury," Welsh activist Bill Murray told Freedom.

"There was a lot of support on the doorstep for an end to any further immigration, clearly showing that the main parties have got it very wrong thinking people have accepted their multicultural experiment."

Candidates Karl and Helen Foulkes, were delighted with this unexpected boost to their campaign team:

"We are extremely grateful for all their help. It was a real pleasure meeting so many friendly, hard working activists from all over Wales and over the weekend we managed to leaflet both the wards we are contesting.

BNP poll 17% in Wales

By Bill Murray

IT WAS a great day for the BNP in Towyn, North Wales, when our candidate Lloyd Thomas Morgan came third with 17.1%, the best vote percentage ever gained in Wales by the British National Party.

CONWYN COUNCIL
Thursday 20th April 2006
Towyn Ward by-election

William Knightly (Ind)	223
Ronald Hastings (Con)	116
Lloyd Morgan (BNP)	83
Gareth Lee (Ind)	62

BNP percentage: 17.1%

Lloyd finished just 33 votes behind the Tories in a traditionally Tory town, and despite car loads of Conservative canvassers being bussed in for a big push on polling day.

William Knightly's victory came as no surprise as he is a local businessman employing a lot of local people and works hard within the local community, but what was a surprise was the amicable nature of the campaign.

On polling day all the candidates talked to each other and after the count there were handshakes and mutual congratulations that the contest had been fought in such good spirit . . . something to do with the absence of a Labour candidate maybe?

Waiting game in Scarborough

WHILE 356 BNP candidates knew their fate at the polls on May 4th, Trisha Scott (left), the Scarborough Group fundholder, had to wait another week for the voters' verdict. Trisha was contesting the Stepney ward by-election for Scarborough Borough Council where polling day was Thursday 11th May.
It is the first time the British National Party has fielded a candidate in a local election in the popular North Yorkshire seaside resort.

Setting the record straight on the BNP and the Iraq War

WHEN South West regional organiser Peter Mullins, asked a BNP meeting in Plymouth if anyone could find a use for a hundred copies of a back issue of Freedom, they were snapped up by university student Liam Birch.

What had aroused Liam's interest was the headline of the newspaper, dating right back to September 2004 - 'Bring Our Boys Home!'

"Many students are still unaware that the BNP was the first political party to oppose the sabre-rattling in the run-up to the invasion of Iraq and has consistently called for the end of our troops' involvement there," Liam told Freedom.

"This was an opportunity to set the record straight by capitalising on the student's naturally inquisitive mind while accommodating their perennial lack of funds.

"In 15 minutes I gave away all the copies of the 18 month old issue of Freedom that I had picked up from the meeting and there was one student who was so supportive of my efforts that he took a photograph.

"Hopefully now there are at least some students at my university who know where the British National Party stands on Tony Blair's illegal war in Iraq."

BNL winner gets a drive to remember

AN unforgettable drive where you will take to the wheel of a rugged off-road vehicle and drive over impossible terrain.

Once strapped tightly into the driver's seat with your instructor beside you, you will challenge steep cliffs, drops and gullies, pushing your driving skills to the limit.

This experience teaches you how to handle the wildest off road situations and get the most out of your vehicle.

The itinerary includes a tea or coffee whilst you are briefed by a qualified instructor on driving the courses.

Start off driving small slopes and build up to driving the most complex course that involves very steep cliff faces, deep gullies and sheer drops.

A de-briefing session in which you get presented with a certificate and a driver analysis form completed by your instructor.

Please allow approximately 3 or 7 hours for this amazing 4x4 off-road driving experience.

The British National Party RECRUITMENT LEAFLETS

Help spread the word

£8.50 for 1,000

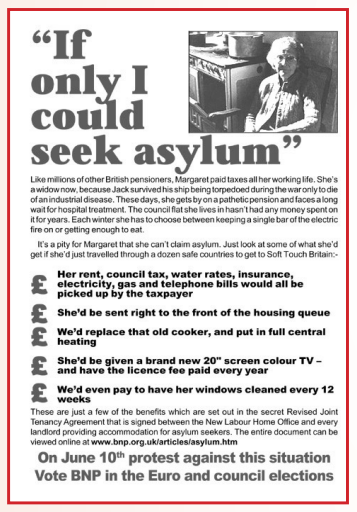

IMMIGRATION? OPEN YOUR EYES

This hard-hitting anti-immigration leaflet draws attention to the alarming figures that show that Britons will be a minority in their own country by 2060.

BUILDING A FUTURE FOR OUR CHILDREN

Links the BNP's election success in Burnley with our policies on law & order and immigration. Also includes details of membership and the BNP's publications.

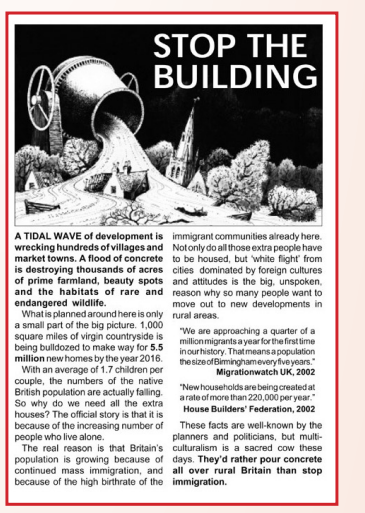

IF ONLY I COULD SEEK ASYLUM

Make no mistake, asylum seekers are invading our country. Arriving at the rate of 300,000 a year, it's costing us £1.3 billion annually to look after them.

KEEP OUR CHILDREN SAFE

"These children would be alive today if our spineless politicians had the guts to decare war on paedophiles," says this powerful leaflet condemning child abusers.

CRIME IS OUT OF CONTROL

With soaring crime rates hitting inner city, suburban and rural areas alike, this leaflet outlines the BNP's 'zero tolerance' stance in combatting crime.

STOP THE BUILDING!

Under Labour, as with the Tories, Britain's greenbelt land is being built on at a frightening rate. We look at the people and companies behind this rural destruction.

FROM: The Secretary, P.O.Box 158, Deeside, Flintshire CH5 2WW.
POSTAGE: £7.80 for 1,000, £8.85 for 2,000.Cheques/POs to 'British National Party'.

St George's Day worries Red Ken

LONDON Mayor Ken Livingstone, has admitted that it's a deliberate policy to play down the significance of St George's Day and give priority to days and festivals that 'celebrate' the multicultural nature of London. Apparently Red Ken is worried that promoting St George's Day would encourage feelings of patriotism and nationalism amongst the host population and could channel more people into supporting the British National Party.

Special housing for Bolton's Asians

BOLTON Council and St Vincent's housing association have built 22 large family homes to help ease the housing shortage.

But the new houses in Crescent Road, Farnworth, have been especially designed "to meet the needs of Asian families".

Local councillor Raymond Stones, admitted:

"It does come across as being an Asians-only scheme."

A spokesman for St Vincent's housing association refused to disclose how much the special design features "to meet the needs of Asian families" added to the building costs.

Labour's priority in Wrexham

POLES and the Portuguese are welcome in Wrexham. That's according to the town's Labour candidate Lesley Griffiths, who told Labour's Welsh Party conference that migrant workers "strengthened the community". Griffiths also called for better housing, better pay and conditions and better access to benefits for the newcomers.

Local people, however, are far from happy with the influx, reporting schools, doctor ssurgeries and housing queues all being swamped by people who have just arrived in the country, not having paid a penny in contributions.

London Assembly deletes Christmas

THE calendar produced by the London Assembly to list important dates for the Metropolitan Police Authority and London Transport has deleted any reference to Christmas in case mention of the Christian festival upsets members of the ethnic minorities.

Yet all the important Islamic festivals, including Ramadan and Eid al Fitr are included, apparently because the London Assembly feels that even in the wake of the London bombings, Britons would not be offended by being reminded of these Muslim festivals.

It appears that those who represent our capital city have already written off the dwindling voting power of native Britons and are already targeting the ethnic minorities in their efforts to get re-elected.

SANDWELL: "Thousands upon thousands" enjoyed St George's Day along with the BNP chairman Nick Griffin.

Being proud of our own bit of diversity

by Nick Griffin

THE St. George's Day Parade in West Bromwich was started just five years ago by a group of local pub regulars and has now grown to be a huge - albeit still almost 'underground' - event.

Initially Sandwell's Labour council tried to ban it, but the gathering is now so big that they've thrown a little bit of notional support at it in the hope of taking control and neutering it.

No hope of that now, that's for sure. The day is, and should remain, an essentially non-political event which is simply about celebrating Englishness, English culture and the right of the majority community to be proud of our own bit of diversity instead of simply being taxed to pay for everybody else's.

Thousands upon thousands of people thronged the street and despite a few spots of drizzle and grey skies that only gradually lifted, everyone was in good spirits.

I have never had my hand shaken by so many people or my photo taken with more individuals, couples and families in such a short space of time. Hundreds and hundreds of handshakes, many scores of photographs – more in an hour and a half than at an entire Red-White-and-Blue weekend.

Any of the 'mainstream' politicians or journalists who actually believe the rubbish they spout about the BNP being 'extreme' or 'unrepresentative' or 'nothing more than a soft protest vote' should have been in West Bromwich to see just how highly 'ordinary' hard-working Brummies and 'Yam Yams' (as Black Country folk are called by their big city neighbours) regard us. Take it from me, our reputation for telling the truth and being politically incorrect and proud of it is giving the BNP near iconic status.

As the huge march filtered in to an amusement park, Black Country organiser Simon Smith, armed with video camera (if only all BNP branches would get into the habit of using these fantastic publicity and security tools), asked me to say a few words to the camera in front of the local war memorial. I obliged, only to find that what started off as an impromptu piece for BNPtv turned instantly into a public meeting, drawing an enthusiastic crowd.

B&B alert for RWB weekend

FOR MANY it's the camping out under the stars in the Ribble Valley that is the best way to enjoy the British National Party's annual family festival, the RWB.

But for those members who prefer a little more comfort, it's the couple of nights in one of the hotels, inns or guest houses within the locality of Sawley that is an added attraction to the weekend.

However, this year, with record-breaking numbers expected at the Red, White and Blue, much of the local accommodation has already been snapped and Jean Griffin, who helps place members of the Trafalgar Club in suitable hostelries, says that vacant rooms are becoming difficult to locate.

"Back at the beginning of February, two of the most popular inns for BNP members were fully booked, and since then the net for the search for available accommodation is spreading wider."

RIBBLE VALLEY: Many of the pubs and guest houses are already full.

SUCCESS: Good music for the adults and Punch & Judy for the kids (Insert).

'Meet the BNP' St George's Day a success in Rochdale

THERE WAS a 'Come and meet the BNP' St George's Day party in Rochdale, providing patriotic entertainment for all the family at a popular local venue.

The entertainment for the kids was in the form of a party clown and a Punch and Judy show, while for the grown-ups there was plenty of good socialising, popular music and the chance to find out more about Britain's fastest growing political party.

Also on offer was an excellent buffet, and a raffle with prizes for both young and old to win.

The event was a chance for members of the public to come and meet the BNP in a non-political way.

The afternoon was a great success with over 150 people in attendance. Lots of questions were asked, and answered, about the BNP and many of those who turned up took away copies of Freedom and leaflets.

"It was a great success. There was no hard sell, we just explained what the BNP was all about and answered any queries," reported Rochdale organiser Kevin Bryan.

"It was a welcome respite from the election and I would like to thank the entertainers and the venue managers for helping the day go so well."

St George's Day gets a boost in Stockport

WHEN Stockport BNP activist Richard Skill, decided to raise awareness and promote St George's Day in his local area, the public response exceeded all expectations.

Fly a flag for St George posters were printed, laminated and taken to local shops for them to display, and St George's Day leaflets were distributed.

Richard told Freedom:

"I had such a positive response to the posters that I had to double the order!

"Most shopkeepers had a chat with me, and were very supportive when I explained how the British National Party was trying to raise the profile of St George's Day."
